

OVERVIEW FOR VENDORS

The Baltimore Museum of Industry Farmers' Market takes place on the museum's South Baltimore campus on Saturdays from 9am to 1pm. The average attendance for a market date is about 350 visitors. Now in its 13th season, the market is:

- Regional: The BMI Farmers' Market accepts vendors whose farm or production address is within 150 miles of the museum, in recognition of the shared geography and history of the region as well as the ever-increasing ease of travel and interaction.
- A Producers' Market: All vendors grow or otherwise create their own product. Acceptance is based on the products listed in this application; therefore, you should list all products you intend to sell and may not sell additional products without approval.
- Entrepreneurial: We emphasize the entrepreneurial spirit of our region by selecting vendors that are individuals or small/family businesses, especially new ones.

Vendors may choose a 13' by 13' covered pavilion space or a two-car-width parking lot space, as available.

The 2021 season runs 28 weeks, from May 15 through November 27. The fee for the entire season is $475 (equivalent to $17.50 per day); the fee for pop-up vendors is $25 per day. Do NOT submit payment until you receive approval from the BMI.

To participate, contact Farmers' Market Manager Ann Fiocco at market@thebmi.org. Then, submit an application online: bit.ly/BMImarketapp21 (this link is case-sensitive).